"The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge; fools despise wisdom and instruction (Proverbs 1:7)." There must be a reason that April 1st is designated as April Fool's Day, but its origin is not clear. There is the theory that when the western world shifted from the Julian calendar to the Gregorian calendar in 1582, those who continued to follow the Julian calendar were considered fools and it became a tradition to play pranks on them because the Julian calendar began its year on April 1. I can't help but think that after going through the last few years with its wild March weather patterns, one would be foolish to not believe that God is trying to get our attention by demonstrating His power over nature, and His ability to disrupt our lives. With all our meteorologists' tools and their ability to project the timing of the storms, we still find ourselves at the mercy of God's anger. Instead of trusting in our weathermen (and women), we need to seek God, not individually, but as a nation.
